

Athanasia Telliou studied International and European Economics and Politics with a major in political studies and diplomacy in the University of Macedonia in Thessaloniki. She got a masters degree in human rights and democratisation at the European Inter-University Center in Lido, Venice and in Coimbra and then a masters degree in political theory and rights at the department of Political Science of the University of Crete in Rethimno. Athanasia is a native speaker of greek and she also speaks english and french.