

Burcak Arıkan holds an undergraduate degree in International Relations and masters degrees in Political Sociology from London School of Economics (UK) and in IR from Middle East Technical University (Turkey) respectively.

Prior to working for ANTIGONE, she has worked as research assistant at European Centre for Minority Issues (ECMI) in Germany with Roma community and in Centre for Democracy and Reconciliation in Southeast Europe (CDSEE) in Greece on projects addressing democratization and development in the Balkans. Her research interests are transnational migration, rights of migrants and minorities, Roma rights and cultural research methods. Burcak speaks Turkish, English and Italian and currently is learning Greek.