

Aspa Plakantonaki is a social development expert with significant experience in both project management and field work, and a long-track record with international and local NGOs, consultancies, the United Nations and the European Commission. Her knowledge and skills focus on human rights, child protection, gender equality, counter-trafficking, migration, civil society capacity building, programme and project design, monitoring and evaluation, and training design and delivery. Aspa has worked and implemented projects in Greece, the United Kingdom, India, Turkey, Kosovo and Haiti. She holds an MA in Social Anthropology and is conversant in Greek, English, Spanish, French and Turkish.